

CRITERION II

2.2.1 The institution assesses the learning levels of the students and organizes special Programmes for advanced learners and slow learners

Special Programmes for advanced learners and slow learners

The College students are mostly first-generation learners with a hindi medium background from semi-urban and rural areas and minority community. To bridge the gap between higher secondary and tertiary levels of education, an Orientation Programme is organized for new students every year.

To identify the advanced and slow learner teachers' personal interaction with students and monitoring of classroom performance is emphasized. The advanced learners are identified during the classroom discussions, performance in the internal assessments, feedback from mentors and teachers.

Measures for advanced learners –

- Class Seminar/lectures and other co-curricular activities to provide students an academic platform to speak publicly.
- Subject based PowerPoint presentations
- Facilitation of brilliant students in annual function.
- Introduction to advance techniques of knowledge such as e-Content, e-Books and e-Library etc.

Measures for slow learners -

- Personal counselling and interaction and Mentoring with students understand their students better.
- Interaction with parents of students who have emotional problems, personal issues and approach their mentors.

Document No. Mentor-Mentee, 2020-21.

Mentoring is a method of supporting students to improve their learning skills and motivating them towards their career development. It is a system of providing students an opportunity to discuss their academic, personal and help the teachers to guide them. It employs a vital role in counselling students (Teacher-Student mentorship).

The objectives of the SOP of economics department is to

- help students of M.A.I & M.A.II brounents to understand the challenges and opportunities present in the college life.
- academic counselling to help the students improve their learning skills, learn to use the students library resources of the college, to encourage them to participate in the extracurricular activities of the college.
- Personal counselling in case of students facing personal issues.
- encourage students of ~~senior~~ senior year to guide & help students of first year and motivate them.

The students of M.A.I & M.A.II were randomly divided between the four teachers of the department to form four Mentor-Mentee group.

The mentor will hold a weekly meeting with the mentees & keep a record of the same.
